ABOUT THE FACULTY

The Faculty of Health Sciences was established in 1997 when the Faculties of Nursing, Kinesiology and Applied Health Sciences merged to become the Faculty of Health Sciences. The result was a dynamic and exciting new faculty comprised of five Schools and two interdisciplinary programs

Today, the Faculty includes six schools – Communication Sciences and Disorders (Audiology, Speech-Language Pathology), Health Studies, Kinesiology, Nursing, Occupational Therapy and Physical Therapy – as well as one interdisciplinary graduate program – Health & Rehabilitation Sciences.

Our mission is “to lead in the generation and dissemination of knowledge in the areas of health and health care, rehabilitation, physical activity and sport”. We are also committed to offering the best student experience among Canada’s leading research-intensive universities.

STATISTICS

3,246	Undergraduate students
734	Graduate students
133	Full-time faculty members
87	Full-time staff
64	Graduate and undergraduate degrees, modules, diplomas and certificates

RESEARCH CENTRES

- National Centre for Audiology
- Canadian Centre for Activity and Aging
- International Centre for Olympic Studies

W. JAMES WEESE Dean

I am extremely proud to share with you the 2011-12 Faculty of Health Sciences Scholarship Report. This document gives us a chance to reflect on our research accomplishments but also provides a glimpse into the future.

The research being generated by our faculty members is as strong and comprehensive as ever and serves as a foundation for our graduate and undergraduate programs, which continue to attract the best and brightest students each year. These students play a key role in our discoveries. We are privileged to work alongside them and value their contributions to the academy.

Research funding from agencies like SSHRC, NSERC, CIHR and CFI are the backbone of our research programs and our researchers are competing favourably for this support. Our members are also earning Western’s most prestigious research and teaching awards in addition to being recognized by agencies around the country for their contributions to health and wellness.

Success like this is not possible with a strong group of professors, associate deans, staff members, postdoctoral fellows and students, all committed to moving our faculty forward. I extend my most sincere thanks to all for their hard work and dedication.

Yours in Health Sciences,

W. James Weese, PhD

Faculty of Health Sciences

HELENE BERMAN Associate Dean (Research)

As is evident throughout the pages of the 2011-12 Faculty of Health Sciences Scholarship Report, our faculty members continue to pave the way in groundbreaking health sciences research.

This publication provides an opportunity to tell the story of how our efforts are significantly impacting the lives of individuals, families, and communities, locally and globally.

Our interests are diverse, the questions we ask are varied, the strategies and methodologies we use to generate new knowledge are innovative, rigorous, and profoundly important. Collectively, we continue to have tremendous success, obtaining prestigious grants in a highly competitive funding landscape, publishing our work in leading journals, and engaging in a wide range of activities designed to translate research findings into practice and policy.

I extend my deepest appreciation to all of my colleagues who continue to set the highest of standards in the pursuit of research excellence, and to the many people who provide ongoing support to the research efforts of our faculty, most notably Gordon MacDonald. Your efforts, individually and collaboratively, help to make Western Health Sciences an internationally recognized faculty – and a great place to work, study, learn and grow.

It is a true privilege to be a part of this team.

Yours in Health Sciences,

Helene Berman, RN, PhD

“ How do we hear in three dimensions with only two ears? How can we improve impaired spatial hearing by understanding how acoustics, anatomy, physiology, and psychology interact in this process?

Ewan Macpherson, PhD

“ Some children struggle to learn at school for no apparent reason. In the Language and Working Memory Lab, we're investigating how weaknesses in a child's working memory or language skills impair learning, and how targeting these areas in intervention may improve learning.

Lisa Archibald, PhD

“ We are dedicated to improving the health and wellbeing of people who have swallowing problems. This is a critical area of health research since lower respiratory infections, which are associated with swallowing impairment, are the third leading cause of mortality worldwide.

“ My qualitative research with men and women who experience multiple of social marginalization focuses on understanding their lived, health and gender-related experiences as they are produced by broader political and structural forces as well as the complex exigencies of everyday life.

Treana Orchard, PhD

“ My research focuses on improving caregiving relationships through enhanced communication, identifying ways to enhance personhood for individuals with dementia, and uncovering the mechanisms by which caregiver interventions are effective

“My research focuses on the ways in which sport and sport events can be used as tools for social change. From empowering communities, to increasing accessibility, to promoting healthy lifestyles; sport and events can be positively influence the lives of individuals and communities.

Laura Misener, PhD

“My research is focused on the impact of globalization and internationalization on the sport industry (e.g., athlete migration) in addition to athlete self-presentation in social media.

Karen Danylchuk, PhD

“ Helping people with disabilities and persons with chronic pain transition into work through investigation of integrative services, systems, policies and knowledge transfer.

Lynn Shaw, PhD

“ My work highlights ways that social, economic, political and cultural contextual factors impact the opportunities various types of societal groups – such as persons aging with chronic disabilities, aging workers, persons experiencing long-term unemployment and First Nations youth – have to do what they want and need to do to contribute to individual, familial and societal well-being.

Debbie Laliberte Rudman, PhD

“ My research centres on the experiences of immigrants to Canada and attends to the structural factors shaping their integration into the host society, including systemic barriers to their social inclusion and their development of a sense of belonging. Particular attention is paid to the shifting relationship between identity, occupation, and place that stems from international mobility among French-speaking immigrants living in London's Francophone minority community.

“ By integrating knowledge from across a variety of disciplines, the Pain and Quality of Life Integrated Research Lab aims to improve the lives of Canadians living with pain, and to prevent chronic pain in those at risk.

Dave Walton, PhD

“ Researchers in the Wolf Orthopaedic Biomechanics Laboratory and Fowler Kennedy Sport Medicine Clinic are studying a combination of rehabilitative and surgical treatments to lessen the load on the knee during walking.

Trevor Birmingham, PhD

“ The focus of my work is to optimize a range of outcomes for children with cerebral palsy aged 18 months to 12 years by developing a surveillance program to monitor many aspects of development. Supportive interventions can then be tailored to each individual child, depending how they are developing ('as expected', 'better than expected' or 'more poorly than expected'). Results will enhance both efficiency and effectiveness of rehabilitation services.
